Tras los mensajes violentos y amenazantes que recibió a través de sus redes sociales Francisco Vera –el niño de 11 años reconocido por tomar las banderas de la defensa del medioambiente–, la representante de la oficina de la ONU para los Derechos Humanos Michelle Bachelet le envió un mensaje de apoyo a este menor por su labor. «Te felicito y te agradezco estas acciones que son las que permiten que avancemos como humanidad y que muestra tu solidaridad y compromiso con la posibilidad de un mundo mejor», le dijo Bachelet en una carta enviada a Francisco Vera, en la que resalta la labor del menor.

La comunicación le fue entregada a Vera directamente por la representante de esta oficina de la ONU en Colombia, Juliette Rivero, quien también felicitó al menor y se solidarizó por las amenazas que recibió en los últimos días.

Francisco Vera es conocido en su Colombia natal por sus campañas medioambientales y su defensa de los derechos de los niños.

El 15 de enero recibió una amenaza de muerte desde una cuenta anónima de Twitter tras publicar un vídeo en el que instaba al gobierno a mejorar la conexión a internet de los niños que estudian en línea.

Ahora, la ONU ha entregado en mano una carta a Francisco, felicitándole por su trabajo pionero en el país sudamericano, donde no es inusual que los activistas medioambientales sean asesinados.

Este martes, la alta comisionada para los Derechos Humanos de la ONU, Michelle Bachelet, le envió una carta a Francisco Vera, el pequeño colombiano que fue amenazado unos días atrás a través de Twitter por su activismo en favor de la protección del medioambiente.

“Es un gusto para mí saludarte a través de esta nota para reconocer lo que tú y otros niños, niñas y jóvenes están haciendo para proteger el planeta y nuestros derechos humanos. Mi Oficina en Colombia me ha informado que tú llevas varios años explicando la importancia de cuidar nuestro planeta, enseñando a reciclar y aportando desde tu activismo a la defensa del ambiente y de los derechos humanos”, aseguró Bachelet en el escrito.

“Te felicito y te agradezco estas acciones que son las que permiten que avancemos como humanidad y que muestran tu solidaridad y compromiso con la posibilidad de un mundo mejor. Nuestro futuro requiere muchas personas como tú y una comunidad internacional y de gobiernos en lo local que tomen conjuntamente medidas climáticas eficaces, ambiciosas, urgentes y basadas en los derechos humanos”, agregó.

167. BBC NEWS: The child environmentalist receiving death threats in Colombia.

<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-latin-america-55803205>

An 11-year-old boy who received death threats after calling for better access to education during the Covid-19 pandemic has been recognised by the UN for his activism.

Francisco Vera is well-known in his native Colombia for his environmental campaigns and defence of children's rights.

On 15 January he received a death threat from an anonymous Twitter account after posting a video urging the government to improve internet connectivity for children studying online.

Now the UN has hand-delivered a letter to Francisco, congratulating him for his pioneering work in the South American country where it is not uncommon for environmental activists to be killed.

In an interview with the BBC, the school student says he welcomes criticism but that violent threats are unacceptable.

In a letter signed by Michelle Bachelet, the UN's High Commissioner for Human Rights, the organisation thanks Francisco for his activism and says that the world needs more young people with his «passion to protect the planet».

«We also agree with you that internet connectivity needs to be improved for boys and girls around the world,» the letter adds.

It was delivered personally to Francisco by Ms Bachelet's delegate in Colombia. Francisco said he was happy to get recognition and hopes to continue working with his peers on environmental projects this year, including a campaign to ban single-use plastics in Colombia.

168. ABC NEWS: Death threat against 11-year-old activist outrages Colombia.
<https://abcnews.go.com/International/wireStory/death-threat-11-year-activist-outrages-colombia-75611238>

Such threats have weight in Colombia. The United Nations says that at least 53 community leaders were murdered in the South American country last year and it is examining reports of an additional 80 such slayings. The nation is struggling to achieve peace following decades of guerrilla conflict and clashes involving drug gangs and paramilitary groups.

Twitter suspended the threatening account and the boy received hundreds of messages of support, including a letter that was hand-delivered by United Nations officials. Signed by the U.N. high commissioner for human rights, Michelle Bachelet, it congratulated Francisco for his work on behalf of the environment.
